Malted Milk Eric Clapton

Intro -

E – B7

```
       E                 A                            E
I keep drinking malted milk ---  Trying to drive my blues away
            E             A                        E
I keep drinking malted milk - Trying to drive my blues away
          B7                         A              E B7
Baby, you're just as welcome to my loving - As the flowers is in May
      E                 A                   E
Malted milk, malted milk, - Keep rushing to my head
E                  A             E
Malted milk, malted milk, - Keep rushing to my head

        B7                   A                                E  B7
And I have a funny, funny feeling --- And I'm talking all out my head
   E                      A                             E
Baby, fix me one more drink - And hug your daddy one more time
   E                      A                             E
Baby, fix me one more drink - And hug your daddy one more time
          B7                       A                     E   B7
Keep on stirring my malted milk, mama, - Until I change my mind
```

BREAK –

E A E A E ---- B7 A7 E B

```
    E                     A                                E
My doorknob keeps on turning, - There must be spooks around my bed
    A                                                      E
My doorknob keeps on turning, - There must be spooks around my bed
                   B7         A                             E
And I have a funny, funny feeling - And the hair's rising on my head
```